Mapping Three Decades of Telework Research: A Bibliometric Analysis

Nadia Kowalczyk-Reyes
Department of Imaginary Studies, Fictional University

Abstract. This working paper maps 1,840 telework publications from 1990 to 2020 using co-citation analysis. Research clusters around well-being, work-family balance and technology adoption; productivity studies form a small but growing cluster.

Keywords: telework, bibliometrics, literature mapping, co-citation

Kurgusal örnek veri. AI Agents Masterclass (@selma.builds) için üretildi; gerçek bir yayın değildir.

Method

Co-citation and keyword co-occurrence networks.

Results

Five clusters identified; productivity cluster grew fastest after 2015.

Conclusion

Research clusters around well-being, work-family balance and technology adoption; productivity studies form a small but growing cluster.
